

The city of Modernisme

'BARCELONA, BARCELONA' the famous song by Freddy Mercury and Montserrat Caballé that turned this city into one of the most beloved of European cities. Following the Olympics games in 1992, Barcelona revitalized its look and rhythm becoming one of the trendiest in fashion, nightlife, and in its great variety of 'wow-factor' venues to organize special events.

Barcelona has always been an interesting city, especially for its variety in architecture and arts. We have been open to the Mediterranean sea for centuries, integrating many cultural aspects which have influenced the city's character.

It has long been a spot famous for artists and architects who have changed and developed new concepts of art. Including Salvador Dali, Pablo Picasso (who lived there for many years) and Miró. However, the artist/architect who entirely changed the look of this magnificent city is Gaudi by implementing Art Deco throughout the city. Who has not heard of the Sagrada Familia's Church?
